CURRENT RESEARCH FOCUS

My research feeds into a broad understanding of human/environmental interactions and links between the intensification of agriculture and the emergence of complex social traits. Additionally, I am investigating the role of gene flow through seed dispersal as a driving force in plant domestication; specifically, how the extinction of the Pleistocene megafauna effected seed dispersal in crops. Methodologically, I rely heavily on macrobotanical remains, but also have experience with pollen and phytoliths. I have directed paleoethnobotanical studies across Asia, from Mongolia in the northeast to Turkmenistan in the southwest, as well as East Asia, Europe, and North America.

CURRENT STATUS

Paleoethnobotany Laboratories Director - Max Planck Institute for the Science of Human History

RESEARCH POSITIONS AND FELLOWSHIPS

Laboratory Director of the Paleoethnobotany Laboratories at the Max Planck Institute for the Science of Human History (Max-Planck-Institut für Menschheitsgeschichte)	2016 – Present
Visiting Research Scholar, Institute for the Study of the Ancient World, New York University	2016 – 2017
Adjunct Instructor, Campaign Management, School of Professional Studies, New York University	2017 – 2017
Volkswagen and Mellon Foundations Postdoctoral Fellow in the Humanities at Universities and Research Institutes in Germany, at the German Institute of Archaeology, Eurasian Branch	2014 – 2016
Affiliated Researcher with Free University Berlin, in the Paleontology Department, Geosciences Division	2014 – 2015
Faculty Assistant, Department of Anthropology, Washington University in St. Louis	2014 – 2014
Research Associate in Anthropological Archaeology, Department of Anthropology, Washington University in St. Louis	2013 – 2017

- Paleoethnobotanical analysis for Vasilkovka and Krasnyi-Yar, Northern Kazakhstan (3700 – 3100 B.C.), conducted by the Carnegie Museum of Natural History and the Presidential Cultural Center of Kazakhstan 2013
- Project Paleoethnobotanist for a series of different excavation projects in Mongolia conducted during the summer of 2012, 2014, and 2015, variously directed by Julia Clark, Lisa Janz, and their colleagues 2012 – 2015
- Project Paleoethnobotanist for the Tasbas site in Semirech'ye, Kazakhstan, principle investigator Paula Doumani 2011 – 2015
- Part of a team conducting paleoethnobotanical analyses on material from three sites in Tibet, Changuogou, Kung Lung Silver Castle, and Din Dun. The project is in collaboration with Jade d'Alpoim Guedes, Lu Hongliang, Li Yongxian, Wu Xiaohong, and Mark S. Aldenderfer 2010 – 2013
- Project Paleoethnobotanist for the site of Ojakly in the Kara Kum of Turkmenistan, principle investigators Lynne Rouse and Barbara Cerasetti. Excavations at Ojakly and subsequent analyses were funded by NSF Grant No. 1036942, Wenner-Gren Grant No. 8157, the George F. Dales Foundation, and the International Research & Exchanges Board IARO Grant program. As an extension of this project I am analyzing material from sites 1211 and 1219, excavated under the directorship of Maurizio Cattani 2010 – 2015
- Worked as the Project Paleoethnobotanist and excavator at the Tuzusai excavation in Kazakhstan. The excavation was conducted by the Kazakh-American Talgar Archaeological Project under the directorship of Claudia Chang. Archaeobotanical research was funded by NSF (2010-2011), Grant Number 1010678 “Doctoral Dissertation Improvement Grant: Plant Use and Domestic Economy Among Eurasian Mobile Pastoralists: Semirech'ye, Kazakhstan, during the Bronze and Iron Age Interface”, PI/Co-Pi: M. Frachetti and R.N. Spengler III 2009 – 2015
- Worked as part of the Dzhungar Mountains Archaeological Project during two field seasons. In the Semerich'ye region of southeastern Kazakhstan, I conducted macrobotanical studies using floatation, surface survey, and excavation. The project is directed by Michael Frachetti and is partially funded by NSF, Grant Number 0211431 “Dzhungar Mountains Archaeological Project”, principle investigator Michael D. Frachetti 2007 – 2015
- Studied classical and Medieval history in Rome, Italy and at the Vatican as part of an honors contract through the University at Buffalo. “Medieval Catholic Pilgrimages to Rome” a study of the early Christian practice of pilgrimages to Rome 2005

TEACHING EXPERIENCE

I have prepared and presented dozens of lectures on a wide range of topics over the past seven years. I have held teaching assistantship positions at Washington University in St. Louis, Free University, Berlin, and New York University. My experience includes running laboratory sessions, lecturing to undergraduates, leading seminars, advising graduate and undergraduate students in office hours, and directing methods courses in the field and in the laboratory. I have considerable experience teaching and three full courses prepared and ready to implement.
